COME EXPLORE

The College of Charleston Spring semester study abroad program in Buenos Aires, Argentina is designed for students who major or minor in Spanish, or who are interested in earning up to 12 credit hours of upper level Spanish; students who major or minor in Latin American and Caribbean Studies or International Studies; or for students from any academic discipline interested in developing fluency in Spanish.

One of the program highlights is that students will live with Argentine families during their semester abroad. The families are selected by an organization that specializes in placing college students with Argentine families, and placement is based on answers to a questionnaire that students complete. Living with families provides students a great opportunity to learn about Argentina daily life and culture. During the semester, students can participate in cultural activities and excursions that provide a rich cultural experience.

Students must have an overall GPA of 2.5. Interested students must also have completed, or be currently registered in Spanish 202 prior to participating in the program.
